

CELEBRATING 50 ISSUES - COVER COMPETITION WINNER

As part of our 50th issue celebrations we ran a competition offering our readers the opportunity to appear on the cover of the magazine. To enter the Front Cover Competition, all you needed to do was take a picture of who you would like to appear on the cover, then in 30 words or less say why you/they should be on the cover of Bushcraft & Survival Skills Magazine. We received many entries ranging from individuals to groups and we can say that it was a difficult decision to make. In the end we chose James Hitchings and his 6 year old son to appear on the cover, we feel that their description about spending time together as father and son out in the wilds is what our ethos at Bushcraft & Survival Skills Magazine is all about.

The cover photograph of this issue was shot at The Bushcraft Show 2014 by Andy Childs of ClockworkCloud Media and we think you'll agree it's a great photo!

UPCYCLING AT ITS BEST - THE BIGGEST CAMPFIRE KETTLE EVER

Introducing the NEW 'Biggest and Best' Campfire Kettle - this is upcycling at its best! Made from a reclaimed stainless steel milk churn this kettle is an effective way to boil a larger quantity of water for numerous hot drinks, bathing, washing-up, or camp cooking. The Kettle has been designed and manufactured by Rupert Brown, (whose 'Brown Filter Bag' has revived the old Millbank bag) along with input from John Rhyder who was instrumental in the design and testing. Perfectly balanced, the kettle can sit over the fire and then be lifted from the rear handle to pivot and pour. Being Stainless Steel it will not melt if boiled dry, is not prone to rust and removes the concerns with using Aluminium cookware.
